

Smart tools. Healthy outcomes. Smart business.

While you're focused on providing the best possible care for your patients, Shared Health's smart tools let you manage all the increasing demands for accountability and performance that your practice faces. As part of Shared Health's solutions, these tools help you meet "meaningful use" criteria that may qualify you for incentive payments under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (ARRA).

With these tools, you're able to:

- Better follow patients with chronic conditions
- Record and follow changes in vital signs and key clinical indicators
- Generate lists of patients who need care and proactively reach out to patients
- Enhance clinical quality measure performance
- Report ambulatory quality measures
- Respond to clinical decision support alerts
- Share and exchange pertinent clinical information among a patient's health care team
- Provide better outcomes for your patients
- Track preventive care and wellness tasks
- Connect to and review patient data from other professionals and consultants outside your office

Shared Health Clinical Insight

With Clinical Insight, you get a practice management tool that presents a broad view of key clinical indicators for your entire patient population. Clinical Insight allows you and your staff to generate reports that determine opportunities to provide care for specific groups of patients, and ultimately improve outcomes for all patients.

By using Clinical Insight, you're able to:

- Analyze ambulatory quality performance
- Review results for implementing clinical decision support guidelines
- Generate lists of patients by their conditions
- Determine evidence-based care opportunities across populations
- Generate action/call reports to contact patients that need to be seen

Shared Health Condition Tracker

With Condition Tracker, you can view each patient's comprehensive history and key clinical indicators by condition at the point of care. It's a collaborative, pre-populated registry that allows you to document process and outcome indicators within each patient's record, determine the appropriate course of treatment, identify potential care opportunities, and meet quality and performance measures for your practice.

By using Condition Tracker, you're able to:

- Incorporate data from a patient's entire health care team
- Longitudinally follow patient progress by condition over time
- Track multiple chronic conditions simultaneously
- Break down traditional silos of information
- Simplify the registry process
- Assure compliance with evidence-based guidelines

Enhance your practice today.

With both of these tools, you'll be able to effectively manage and treat patients, identify care opportunities, and provide quality health care. Call us at 1.888.283.6691 or visit us online at www.sharedhealth.com.
